DAD JOKE OF THE WEEK

I can't take my dog to the park anymore. The ducks keep biting him.

I should have known this would happen: he's pure bread.

Quote for the week

"We must believe that we are gifted for something and that this thing must be attained."

-Marie Curie

GOOD NEWS STORIES

REIGNITING A LOVE OF READING

In the Mediterranean city of Tartus, Syria, Mohamed Zaher spends his time manning a kiosk called Wisdom Seller, which invites passersby to stop and read from the more than 2,000 books that line its walls. To encourage visitors to stick around, anyone who reads at least 15 pages of a book gets a free coffee. The 32-year-old veteran is encouraging his fellow Syrians to get back into reading after the war made certain luxuries, including printed books, unaffordable for many of its citizens. Zaher says reading was “therapeutic” for him during his time in battle. To keep the kiosk going, he depends on funding from affluent local citizens—but everyone is encouraged to come by. He estimates that more than 20,000 visitors of all ages have stopped by his stall since its opening. —Tina Knezevic

Prayer

God,

*I often let my circumstances determine my mood, and when I'm down I put my energy into complaining and feeling sorry for myself. Help me focus on You--on Your goodness, on Your presence, on Your peace--so at all times, and especially my low moments, I am thankful for all You are and all You do in my life.
Amen.*
