GOOD NEWS STORIES

DELTA FLIGHT ATTENDANT CONSOLES FEARFUL PASSENGER AND PHOTO GOES VIRAL

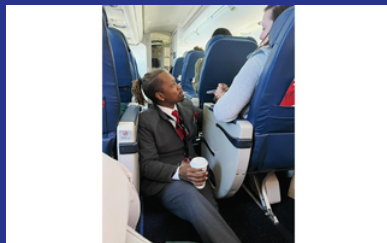

Everyone has their phobias—spiders, elevators, loneliness, but unfortunately for one Delta Airlines passenger, hers was flying. Molly Simonson Lee was flying from Charlotte near her home in Raleigh, North Carolina, to New York when it became clear that a passenger in front of her was not comfortable flying. The frightened woman began to cry, and that's when Lee witnessed a touching act of humanity when a flight attendant posted up on the floor next to her and explained he would be there for her every step of the way.

"He just was so reassuring, so calming, and said, 'you know what? I got you,'" Lee explained to ABC 7. "I'm gonna be there for you, just anything you need to let me know.' And he was so wonderful and reassuring. With every little noise, she'd be like, 'what's that?' He's like, 'that's okay. That's just the jet bridge pulling away' or whatever the case may be. And that really helped her."

The flight attendant was Floyd Dean-Shannon, and a photo of him holding the woman's hand, snapped by Lee, went viral on her Facebook wall.

"He didn't have to do that, you know, and to just see someone extend their heart in that way to a stranger was just beautiful to me, and I wanted to capture it," she said. "I just really hope that Floyd gets what he deserves, which is everyone's love, everyone's praise, everyone's admiration. I'm so happy that he's getting that recognition. And I really hope it leads to good things for him."

Kindness and a show of humanity go a long way!

Prayer

Dear Lord,
 help me be reliable for my friends, family and those who count on me. It's so important to be a person of my word: give me the courage, discipline and confidence to be that kind of person for those around me. Help me appreciate the confidence that others have in me. I don't want to break their trust in me. Help me the kind of person I can be proud of.
 Amen.
