GOOD NEWS STORIES

CYCLING LESSONS FOR WOMEN

"It's like riding a bike" is a common refrain when you want to remind someone that it's hard to forget a basic skill. But what if you didn't know how to ride a bike?

This was something that Annette Krüger, an avid cyclist, saw was true for many women, including refugees, who'd moved to Berlin. Whether they weren't allowed—or didn't have the opportunity—to learn, these women had never experienced the health benefits and independence that cycling offers.

That is why, seven years ago, Krüger started Bikeygees, a non-profit focused on teaching women to ride a bike. The group meets for two hours every month and for training sessions throughout the week. Advanced riders can borrow bikes and helmets for free to practise on their own.

More than 500 bikes have been donated so far, and Krüger says the goal is to eventually provide all participants with their own bike. To date, the group has taught more than 1,400 women and has met in more than 20 locations within Germany, including in emergency shelters.

Participants have said that riding a bike allows them not only freedom of movement—some of the women use them to bring their children to school—but also hope for the future.

Krüger says that she can see the impact that concentrating on a new skill has for the women. "We can't replace what someone lost in their life, but we can offer something new." —Tina Knezevic

Thank you for loving me and for the many ways you teach me, guide me and reassure me through this community, through Scripture, and through prayer. Help me to continue growing in Your wisdom and compassion. Show me how to trust You more.
