

HSP 3U

Course Overview

- This course introduces you to three different disciplines:
 - Anthropology: the scientific study of humankind including their origins, behaviour, and physical, social and cultural development.
 - Sociology: the study of social behaviour and human groups.
 - Psychology: the scientific study of the human mind and its functions, especially those affecting behavior in a given context.
- Topics covered in this course include: serial killers, sleep and dreams, Freud, conflict theory, feminism, abnormal socialization, brain structure etc.

Take this if....

- you are fascinated by human development and the ways in which humans interact and construct our societies.
- you love exploring cultures throughout the World.
- you have an interest in studying artifacts and archeology.
- you are interested in clinical abnormal psychology.

YOU WILL LOVE....

- the Mental Disorders Presentations.
- listening to guest speaker Dr. Prime (Primatologist).
- exploring controversial experiments.
- all of the career avenues this opens (public relations, social work, public policy analysis, work with government agencies, community activism, consumer advocacy, journalism, law, urban planning and more!).

Introduction to Anthropology, Sociology and Psychology.

