WELCOME!

Take Our Kids to Work Day is an experiential learning opportunity for Grade 9 and Secondary III (Quebec) students across Canada since 1994. Now hosted by the Students Commission of Canada, this day offers youth the chance to see the world of work firsthand, explore a variety of careers and sectors, and look at what skills are important to thrive in the world of work.

This year, on Wednesday, November 1, students, caregivers, educators and workplaces will have options for participating in diverse, inclusive and accessible career exploration on Take Our Kids to Work Day 2023!

The theme for Take Our Kids to Work 2023, Everyone Belongs Here. The return to in-person experience, featuring diverse experiences and representatives, all students, regardless of their circumstances, will be empowered to see the value they hold and power they possess in making decisions about their future. Through it all, the goal is to ignite students' curiosity and open the door for them to see what is possible for their future.

IN THIS GUIDE

This guide has been prepared to give families all they need to make the most out of Take Our Kids to Work Day, whether in school or at home. Here's what you'll find in the pages that follow:

PART A

BEFORE: PREPARING YOUR CHILD

Activities to engage and prepare children for their Take Our Kids to Work Day experience.

PART B

DURING: MAKING THE DAY MEMORABLE

Some of the ways you can incorporate Take Our Kids to Work Day into your workplace.

PART C

AFTER: REFLECTING ON TAKE OUR KIDS TO WORK DAY

Activities for the whole family to reflect upon the kind of day they had, what they learned, and to share their learnings.

Pre-activity #1: Setting your goals and expectations!

Have your child complete Part A of this planning worksheet before Take Our Kids to Work Day. This can simply be a conversation starter at dinner, in the car, or done on paper. After the day, they will return to it to complete Part B.

Goals & Expectations of Take Our Kids to Work Day

Part A: Before Take Our Kids to Work Day

3 things I expect to experience during my Take Our Kids to Work experience:

2.
3.

3 questions I hope to have answered during my Take Our Kids to Work experience:

1.
2.
3.

Part B: After Take Our Kids to Work Day

3 things I learned during my Take Our Kids to Work experience:

1.

3 careers or jobs I encountered during my Take Our Kids to Work experience:

1.
2.
3.

3 opportunities I am excited about after my Take Our Kids to Work experience:

1.
2.
3.

Pre-activity #2: My Values

When we name our values, it's easier for us to act in line with them. As a family, each member can do this activity at the same time and compare your answers. If your child is unsure about some of these words, it can bring great conversations.

Circle the five values on this list that are the most important to you¹.

- | | | | |
|--------------|--------------------|---------------------|-----------------|
| Achievement | Fairness | Integrity | Respect |
| Adventure | Faith | Joy | Self-discipline |
| Authenticity | Family | Justice | Self-expression |
| Balance | Freedom | Kindness | Self-respect |
| Belonging | Friendship | Knowledge | Spirituality |
| Community | Future generations | Leadership | Sportsmanship |
| Compassion | Generosity | Legacy | Success |

Discuss:

Why did you pick these values?

Which ones almost made your top 5? Why not?

How can these values be reflected in a job, in the workplace?

YOUR MISSION

PART B: DURING MAKING THE DAY MEMORABLE

If you are welcoming your child in your workplace and there are no specific activities in place, here are some ideas for making the most out of the Take Our Kids to Work experience.

The Students Commission of Canada produced seven unique Take Our Kids to Work Day session recordings. These components may be used by workplace hosts, by teachers in their classrooms, or by parents with child at home. More students will be able to access more diverse workplace experiences than ever before!

The pre-recorded sessions are designed to be:

- Modular: You can select which session(s) you want to watch and include all or some in your day. Each session is designed to be up to 45 minutes to be compatible with your schedule.
- Flexible: Each session will be available not only throughout the day, but even after November 1st to complement the journey that is career exploration.
- Inspiring and fun!

Below, you will find a short description of each of the sessions to help you select the ones that will be best suited for the day.

How to Access the Recorded Sessions and Virtual Event

Everyone Belongs Here!

This cornerstone virtual event is an uplifting way to kick off the day, bringing a message of purpose and belonging to students, their parents and educators alike. The 45-minute pre-recorded video sets the stage for a great Take Our Kids to Work Day and is available afterwards to use as part of your regular curriculum. RBC Olympian Larissa Franklin will share her journey in high-performance sport and her career emphasizing resilience and self-discovery. Students from across Canada will ask questions and a panel of experts from diverse industries will provide their insights and tips. Available in English and French.

Theme sessions

These 45-minute videos feature seven different career themes., Hosted by dynamic and interactive industry experts, they offer more options than ever before for students to encounter numerous professionals, sectors and industries. Each session is available for viewing throughout the day, and after the day. Available in English and French.

Take Our Kids to Work Day Live!

All day November 1, 2023, your employees, visiting students and their families can drop-in to a casual coast-to-coast live stream event. Ask questions of Career Advisors. Share stories of discoveries from

Everyone Belongs Here! Cornerstone Kick-off

Showcasing self-discovery, resilience and play in career exploration

Presented by RBC Future Launch

Welcome to a day of discovery. So often, we don't know what we don't know. That can limit what and who we aspire to be. Everyone deserves insights into all the possibilities ahead, the opportunity to explore how their talents match jobs of today and tomorrow. Our goal is to introduce you to as many happy people with diverse career stories as you have time for today and in the year ahead. Everyone belongs here! is our theme for introducing a world of endless possibilities and ways of meeting some challenging realities. In this session, RBC Olympian Larissa Franklin kicks us off with her journey in high-performance sport, emphasizing resilience and self-discovery in the career journey. Sharif Mahdy goes from camper to CEO of a national charity for youth. In addition, some young Canadians will share their lived experience such as how they turned a teenage career in anti-racism work into a career in corporate banking and social responsibility or went from attending a youth conference to Deputy Chief. We'll finish up suggesting you check our Career Advisors featured on the website who will be available throughout the day for live interaction in our Take Our Kids to Work Live! Drop-in livestream

Discovering your Talents in the 21st Century The Art of Work today, tomorrow and forever

Plum io, Shad Canada, International Experiences Canada, The Students Commission of Canada

Dive into the world of 21st-century skills and their relevance in today's job market. New jobs, new careers are being created every day. Your talents, your skills can lead you to success in more jobs than perhaps anyone knows. Discover the key skills and competencies that employers seek in today's workforce or kick-start you into your own business. This session offers insights into how to discover and strengthen your talents and skills every year you are in high school, through work, volunteering and travel. Panelists will share their stories of discovering and harnessing their talents, moving from building one business, to another and then another. Discover how to align your unique strengths and talents with jobs and careers that energize you. Discover how you can travel, within and outside of Canada with programs that prepare students for the challenges of the future. The session highlights various success stories and showcases real-life examples of young and older individuals who have honed their 21st-century skills to excel in their careers. Panelists will respond to youth-submitted video questions, providing personalized insights and advice to inspire and empower young participants on their career journeys.

Plum is a Talent Platform, that provides employers data-driven insights to empower individuals to find career opportunities that align with their unique strengths and talents. Shad Canada offers a month-long summer program in 22 universities across Canada focused on STEAM and entrepreneurship for grade 10 and 11 students. International Experience Canada (IEC) offers Canadians the opportunity to work and travel abroad. The Students Commission of Canada offers skill building programs for youth through conferences, volunteering, youth advisories, employment and social justice projects.

Cultivating Green Careers of the Future Diversifying sustainable career pathways

Explore the future of green careers, helping to repair, improve and preserve the environment. Get a sense of how industries are innovating and understand the importance of sustainability in today's world. This session will feature a section where key actors of the sector respond to youth video-submitted questions, addressing specific inquiries and inspiring participants to consider careers in the green economy. Hear from Rodney, whose work for social change as a teenager taught him skills that led him from a heavy equipment operator to a successful management career in the oils and how he now balances two worlds, protecting and preserving the environment in his reserve and working for change in industry.

Diversifying the Creative Journey

The Art, Media, and Design Industry

This session focusses on art, media, and design careers. Explore the diverse and dynamic world of creative industries and learn about the exciting opportunities they offer. Engage in discussions with experts and professionals from the art, media, and design sectors, gaining valuable insights into their journeys and experiences. Discover the power of creativity, storytelling, and innovation in these industries and how they shape our culture and society. This session will also provide an interactive element where panelists respond to youth video-submitted questions, offering personalized advice and encouragement to aspiring young creatives.

PART C: AFTER REFLECT ON TAKE OUR KIDS TO WORK DAY

Here are four activities families may complete following Take Our Kids to Work Day. These activities allow youth to reflect on their day and identify what they learned.

Post-activity #1: Take Our Kids to Work Day reflection

Engage in a discussion about their Take Our Kids to Work Day experience and encourage your child to share highlights of the day (e.g., a presentation that was made, guest speaker, their favourite activity, etc.).

On the Goals & Expectations worksheet completed prior to Take Our Kids to Work Day (see pre-activity #1 in this guide), have your child list three things that they learned during their workplace experience as well as reflect and assess whether they met their goals for Take Our Kids to Work Day.

Post-activity #2: Dream job

Encourage your child to creatively describe their dream jobs and the five skills they need to do these jobs. You can even refer back to the Values activity (Pre-activity #2) done prior to the day.

You may want to provide a list of the global competencies (below) as a starting point for what types of skills youth may include.

Students can present their ideas through a poem, song, rap, infomercial, etc. or simply discuss it at dinner time. They are also encouraged to show a photograph or drawing representing their dream jobs.

Global Competencies

Creativity,
Innovation and Entrepreneurship

Critical Thinking and Problem
Solving

Global Citizenship
and Sustainability

Collaboration

Communication

Self-Directed Learning
(Learning to Learn)

Post-activity #3: Sharing My Stories

We all have a story to tell about this day and we are still writing our story! This is a space for your child to reflect on their experiences right now and how they picture the next chapters.

Draw the cover of your story:

A book written by:

Title: What would the title of your story be?

Dedication: Who would you dedicate your story to? It could be yourself, a quote you resonate with, or an inspirational individual:

Introduction: What is there to know about the author? Where does the story begin?

What chapter are you at now? Chapter title:

What does your current chapter include? Where are you at now? What are some accomplishments and feelings about this specific chapter?

What would you like future chapters to look like? What are some of your hopes, dreams, and visions you would like to see in your future chapters?

Post-activity #4: My Memory Jar

Use the following activity with your child: Imagine you are putting together a Memory Jar of your day for your friends and family to discover. What is important to you and the way you lived your day? What do you want people to remember you as? What are some things you want future generations to know about your generation? Fill up your jar with drawings, photos, words, stickers, website/link you love, etc.
